. . . DEDICATION . . .

In recognition of the faithful service rendered by him during forty-four years of teaching in the Weymouth schools, twenty-three of which he taught at the High School, we, the Class of 1943, wish to dedicate our last edition of the Reflector to Mr. Everett N. Hollis. His time and efforts, so unselfishly given for our benefit, we shall long remember. We wish him happiness and a long life.

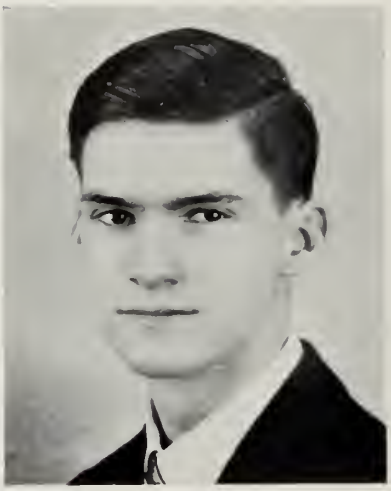
Science and Industry in War



Alden Vickery Loud

The closer affiliation between science and industry that has developed from the present wartime emergency is one of the most progressive steps yet realized from the war. Pure science, alone in the laboratory or textbook, is useless without a field of application; and industry, without the advantage of scientific improvement, is a self-centred, non-advancing field. Let these two be joined, however, and we see the signs of man's ingenuity beginning to stir. Fix to these the necessity provided by war, and with startling speed the formula emerges spontaneously as the achievement of success that we have today. Necessity is indeed the spark of life granted to this combination; and war, an unnecessary business, paradoxically supplies just the impetus needed. Fortunately, on our side, this nation stands, with test tube poised and welding torch ablaze, ready to provide for anything that is desired; for the winning strength in battles, for the superiority of instruments and weapons, and for the utmost safety precautions for our fighting men.

Let us see how these developments emerge. Perhaps, in the midst of a battle a soldier thinks of some gadget that might do a better job than some of the present equipment. He suggests this to one of the officers who makes a note of it. Eventually the idea gets back to the United States, and is referred to a group of scientists who study the problem. In time, if the project is feasible, it is perfected and turned over to our modern industrial organization. This group applies its principles of mass production, and with enemy-stunning alacrity a new weapon is produced and distributed. This is an example of the co-operation between science and industry. Another instance. A naval officer complains that he must have a better submarine detector. Immediately, with scientific precision, old devices are analysed, defects corrected, improvements made, and new inventions tested. Soon, with the apparatus completed, it, too, goes to the assembly line; another product of this splendid co-operation helping to save lives and win the war.

Thus, we see that in the course of war many previously unsuspected problems arise. With the aid of minute scientific investigation, discoveries are effected and then, by means of organized industry, these implements of war are rapidly produced. Necessity is the incentive of co-operation which is the keynote of success.

Progress is not limited to an emergency created by war, but is only accelerated by it. Constant research is being undertaken in laboratories throughout the country, and from time to time fundamental principles are discovered. A practical application of one or more of these principles is called an invention.

In wartime more and more research scientists are needed to work longer hours investigating more diversified fields. Under such a system more of the basic laws of nature are evolved. Also in wartime, inventors bend all their efforts towards contrivances applicable to winning the war. Hence, there are produced better engines, more effective medicines, momentous achievements in the science of communications, and many other advances all pointing to final victory.

In the realm of industry, the effect of war is just as stimulating. Every manufacturer increases his output, and those plants not able to make war materials are remodeled so that their facilities may be utilized in making essential articles rather than their normal products. Every conceivable type of factory is a masterpiece of human ingenuity in expeditious production.

Now, let us examine the results of a speeded-up home front by watching a typical member of the armed forces. He gets up early in the morning and eats a hearty breakfast of food that has probably been shipped in a dehydrated condition, a process that saves much space and weight on cargo boats. After that, he sets about his daily routine, protected, if he is in such a zone, from serious tropical diseases by powerful treatments given him by the medical staff. Next, our average fighting man goes out on field maneuvers, or perhaps it is a real battle. There he uses the most accurate weapons ever made, scientifically designed and under high-speed mass production in the United States. Or, maybe, he is in the air force fighting the enemy; still he uses the best planes, the best bombsights, the best radios, and the best of all equipment. He may be in a submarine, or a tank, or on a battleship or even in a commando unit; always he has the best that we can supply the fastest. Later in the day comes the most enjoyable part, V-mail from home; and there we have an undeniably outstanding achievement of the war. The solution that V-mail is providing to the all important problem of quick, facile transmission of morale-builders will stand as a monument to success.

So we observe a world struggle. So we see the progressiveness of a world of science and industry in a time of turmoil. There we realize the true significance of unity and the application of that union to success; a combination furthered by trial helping to abolish its stimulant. Science is dependent on industry; industry depends on science; the present world crisis is dependent on both of these and the future of this nation depends on the successful outcome of the war.

The Strategy of Global War

Madeline Jean Mitchell

THIS PRESENT conflict presents us with many innovations in warfare. It has introduced a strategy of global war that warns us to sit up and take notice. No longer can people remark with smug satisfaction, "It Can't Happen Here!" We in the United States are aware of this fact. Science and industry, men and women, from all walks of life, have mobilized on the home-front for an all-out victory.

What has caused this change to come over us? Why do citizens give up their leisure time to prepare for possible attacks from the air by an invader? The answer may be found in a new approach to the study of geography, which has revolutionized military thinking in our present day.

The origin of this study of geography can be traced to the beginning of the 20th century. An Englishman named MacKinder saw that the globe consisted of one large island extending from the coastal countries of Europe to the Orient, including at the same time Africa. On both sides of this World Island were two formidable sea powers, Japan and Great Britain. MacKinder recognized that here was the basis for a new war strategy. Thus he set forth a perfect theory of geopolitics. It was: "Whoever rules the East Europe commands the Heartland; who rules the Heartland commands the World Island rules the World."

But the English paid little attention to his ideas that the combination of space and politics could lead to the conquest of the world by one country. They had their powerful fleet. So what did they care about theories that were mere possibilities, while their sea power had made them the Empire on which the sun never sets?

It remained for a clever German named Haushofer to make these theories a reality. After the first World War, while most Germans laid down their arms and returned to peaceable occupations, Haushofer poured over military books, noting the errors of one campaign, the success of another. He sent men out to foreign countries to athletic contests, to ski resorts, to foreign colleges purposely to study the geography and political status of the countries in question. Every postcard and snapshot was studied, until Haushofer saw how the geographical factors of a territory influenced its politics.

In his classrooms, he did not teach from old-style maps showing the long water routes from continent to continent, but used the new map of the Air Age, which from the point of view of one looking down from the North Pole, shows the closeness of the continents connected by the land bridges, such as the Aleutians, Alaska, Iceland, and Greenland.

Since the earth is $^{9}/_{12}$ water and $^{3}/_{12}$ land, and Eurasia is 2/3 of this land, he realized that, if there could be one dominating power in this Heartland, either by alliances or by subjugation, it would soon be extended to the outer Islands, such as the Americas and Australia. This being true, he observed that the land powers could offset the strength of sea powers if their resources were properly organized. This was a perfect theory to employ in Germany's plan of world conquest.

Hess became interested in this new study called geopolitik and introduced his teacher, Haushofer, to Adolf Hitler, who was in jail at the time. This new geography was logic that Hitler could not afford to overlook in the establishment of his "New Order." It was the perfect tool with which he could outstrip the vaunted sea power of Great Britain. Germany could mechanize. From east to west her dive bombers, mechanized units, and tanks would sweep aside all in their paths. Her armies could follow to occupy the conquered nations in this war of motion. She would employ the blitzkrieg with all its devastation. She would employ the old principle of "divide and conquer." Yes, geopolitics was to be the key to Germany's world domination. Yet, strangely enough the idea had come from an Englishman.

As Hitler's "order" grew, he began to subjugate by force all the surrounding small countries that would not peaceably accept his rule. Gradually the area under German rule spread out, as the ripples grow around the spot where water has been disturbed. England, mighty England, was weakening under the force of Germany's air power. It seemed that she was about to fall. But Hitler, in his confidence, decided to attack Russia, the great Heartland of the continent, without waiting longer, as Haushofer advised. Haushofer objected to the conquest at that time because of the space involved. In his Institute of Geopolitics at the University of Munich, he had maintained that Russia was a state with weak people but much space. That the Russians have disproved this theory, is all too evident to Hitler now.

In Germany's plan, the object of geopolitics has become world domination: lives and human progress have become mere tools of the state. It is expected that the large states shall expand; the small, disappear. "Geopolitics is the servant of a morbid German craving for world power", writes an authority on the subject. It has played such an important role in this war that we, too, have become conscious of it and our military leaders have included it in their strategy of war. They have, however, been forced to study it, in order to protect us against the sly way in which a scientific subject has been turned into an instrument to gain power.

The air age has brought us into close contact with the outside world. Coupled with the diabolic use of Nazi geopolitics it has produced a global war, a war in which we are playing a very important part. These two factors have served to warn us that it can happen here. Let us in America heed this warning and remember that our security in the future will depend upon a clear concept of our rightful peace in future global living.

The World of Tomorrow

Mary Elizabeth O'Donnell

Everywhere there is now promise that victory is in store for the United Nations. The hopes of the American people are mounting. "How soon will it end?" and "What stand must the United States take after the war?" are questions that we hear repeatedly. These are questions which all of us might well consider here today.

How soon will it end? The answer to that question we cannot give; but we hope that when it does end, it will not have been in vain. After November 11, 1918, the world was rejoicing, because the war "to end all wars" was over. Soldiers had returned, or were returning, from the trenches to take their places in civilian life, while statesmen and politicians gathered around the conference table to draw up the plans of a lasting peace.

I shall not discuss what happened at Versailles, how the Senate of the United States rejected the treaty, how we were forced to make a separate peace with Germany and the Central Powers. I shall not even consider the "pros" and "cons" of the League of Nations and the World Court. What I shall point out is that we are at war. "Twenty years of truce" was the net result of that treaty. The next peace settlement must insure to us not merely a truce but a more lasting peace. We cannot afford another war either in money or in man power.

Now the question arises: What stand must the United States take in tomorrow's world? Should this country remain isolated from European organizations as it has in the past? Whatever post war plan is chosen, the United States must take part in it this time. All the victors of this war must assume equal responsibility for the post war reconstruction of the world and not stand aside viewing with disinterest the varied struggles of other nations. This aloofness of the United States was one of the primary reasons for the failure of the Versailles Treaty.

Some people may argue that, since the primary causes of these wars have originated in Europe, the United States should not take a hand in settling their differences. Once we might have strongly contended against such intervention with two vast oceans to isolate the Western Hemisphere. Today, with the ever increasing advance in aviation in the development of the long range bomber and the flying fortress, the world is changing size. Theoretically it is becoming smaller. Tomorrow this geographic revolution will have become even more pronounced. Will the United States be able to maintain a policy of complete isolation in the world of tomorrow?

Has she followed that policy in the past? The first World War and this war prove that while we may maintain this policy in principle, in reality we have not followed it. We went to war then; we are at war now. We spent over 77 billion dollars last year for war; we shall spend more than 100 billion this year.

With the cessation of hostilities the sacrifices that have been made for war will gradually disappear. We have been willing to undergo privations for war. Surely we can undergo some privations to establish peace. Some nations may feel that participating in post war plans will deprive them of individual power, yet theirs is the responsibility to contribute, as best they can, to the preservation of those ideals for which they are now fighting: freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

Compromises can and must be made by the various United Nations. They have a pattern to follow in the system of government employed in the United States. Here they can see that states are sovereign within their own boundries in matters left to their control, although they have given up some of their power to a central government. Before this unique form of government was adopted our country was on the verge of becoming an anarchy. Some central authority had to be created to control and unify the varied interests of all the states. If we look back at the causes of these two World Wars, does it not seem probable that some central control is needed to take charge of those conflicting interests?

We may well be devising plans for the future; but what we draw up on paper today, we should not expect to be completely carried out tomorrow. The people themselves are the ones who will accept or reject the plans that are proposed.

In a recent survey conducted by Fortune magazine, the common everyday man in London, Buenos Aires, Toronto, Chungking, Mexico City, Sydney, Rio de Janeiro, and the United States wanted two general provisions to be guaranteed: a return to normal living and lower prices after this war. Whatever plan is decided upon must, therefore, attempt to provide for the realization of these demands, in order to be acceptable to the people. Other provisions which necessarily will have to be included are: the four freedoms, territorial distribution, and access to and markets for the raw materials and manufactured goods of the world. In short, the United Nations are fighting to obtain personal freedom and economic security for tomorrow.

At present, an attitude of nationalism seems to have been assumed by the peoples of the world. Unless peace plans which they can understand are soon submitted to them, this nationalistic feeling may turn into anything. Now is the time to set forth these plans in order to give the people a chance to formulate some ideas of how the peace settlement should be conducted. Let us not be so unprepared for the peace to come as we were for the war itself.

Whatever plans are accepted by the peoples of the world, we hope that they will be successful, that all future wars will be waged against disease, political corruption, slum areas and similar peace time pestilences. And we might well remember these words of Milton as this war finally comes to a close:

"Peace hath its victories
No less renowned than War."

1943
HISTORY

Class History

THE HISTORY of the class of '43 has been expressed in terms of army life. Each of the four days at Camp Weymouth represents one year of school life.

CAMP PERSONNEL

Commander-in-Chief	President Roosevelt
General	Mr. Thibadeau
Colonel	Mr. Whittle
Major	Mr. Whipple
Major	Mr. Lyons
Captain	Mr. Parker
Lieutenants	Subject teachers
Corporals	Student Council Members Class officers Captains of teams Three seniors with high honor parts
Privates	All other seniors

FRESHMAN YEAR

INDUCTION:

On September 6, 1939, recruits arrived at Camp Weymouth by means of Lovell buses.

ASSIGNED BARRACKS:

All recruits were assigned to barracks in alphabetical order. Lieutenants in charge of barracks were: Lyons, 101; McMorrow, 102; Lyond, 103; Gannon, 104; Raymond, 201; Sheehan, 202; Yonng, 203; Jenkins, 204; Hackett, 206B; Nye, 206C; Bates, 207.

PASSING OUT OF EQUIPMENT:

Books, pencils, pens, blotters, and books for privates studying different subjects were distributed.

CALISTHENICS:

Football practice moved forward under the direction of Lieutenant Arlanson and his able assistant, Lieutenant Ierardi. Corporal Gatto kept the boys pulling together for an exciting, though not undefeated season.

MORNING CHOW:

The usual athletic banquet with the presentation of awards and sweaters followed.

M. P. DUTY:

Privates Ronald Pierce, John MacDougall, John Barker, Kenneth Chubbuck, and Tom Dutson were assigned to Military Police (Student Council) under Major Lyons.

TESTS:

The usual intelligence tests were given privates entering camp.

DRILL:

A platoon of privates was led under the direction of Lieutenant Gannon in a season of eight victories and twelve losses of basketball.

Privates Joe Ouellet, Tom Smith, and "Red" Proctor of these recruits were on the track platoon coached by Lieutenant Page.

LECTURE:

Platoons arrived from many camps to join Camp Weymouth in the conference for Southeastern League of School Publications.

NOON CHOW:

Too busy for noon chow (Freshman-Senior Party Omitted.)

TESTS:

More tests (Boston Herald-Traveler Spelling Bee) were given. Private Betty Ireland received decorations for superiority.

PARADING:

Lieutenant Arlanson, aided by Lieutenant Kelly, coached privates of Platoon No. 3 in a fairly good season of baseball.

GUN PRACTICE:

Lieutenant Bates guided a platoon in tennis. The new recruits were Richard Park and Tom Dutson.

INTRODUCTION OF NEW OFFICIALS:

Upon the retirement of General Pearson, General Thibadeau was presented.

RETREAT:

Camp Weymouth's Orchestra played for the Monday Club and the Old Colony Club, as well as created a musical background for the teachers' play and operetta. A new recruit, Private Charles Galligan, was added to the violin section.

Evening Chow:

A banquet for the Camp Weymouth Band was given by the Rotary Club.

Evening Recreations:

Three outstanding plays were given at the different service centres. They were "Our Town" (the teachers' play), "Mikado" (the annual musical show), and "Tovarich" (the annual Senior Play).

Taps:

An assembly was held in the Ralph Talbot Auditorium at the end of the day. (The last rally of the year, held in June.)

Furlough:

A two months' furlough was given to all in Camp Weymouth.

SOPHOMORE YEAR

Reveille:

Camp Weymouth awoke to the new day with "Quarterback McTavish" written by Lieutenants Ghiorse and Loud.

Calisthenics:

Camp Weymouth was given championship award for its field formation (football season).

Special Appointments:

Privates Frances Wilder and Ann Parker were given special tasks for betterment of camp morale (cheerleaders)

Morning Chow:

Privates of Comp Weymouth, while attending the football banquet, were presented with awards for their field formations and then attended nearby U. S. O. dance (Victory Dance).

Mail Call:

Lieutenant Bicknell received an honorable discharge. Spelling Bee award was presented to Private Irene Henry.

Class Lectures:

Colonel Whittle ordered entire camp to hear the lecture of Civilian Instructor Bruce, the Magician, in the U. S. O.

Special Privilege:

Company B, (football team), commanded by Lieutenant Arlanson, went to near-by Camp Washington.

Noon Chow:

Those not at Camp Washington ate rations on maneuvers.

Exercises:

Private Smith broke camp record in 50-yard dash in obstacle test (track).

Gun Practice:

Lieutenant Bates and Peterson instructed Division 4A, including Privates Madeline Mitchell, Irma Savery, Frances Wilder, Edith Vanasse, Thomas Dutson, and Richard Park in the presentment of arms (tennis).

M. P. Duty:

Military Police (Student Council) for the day were appointed including Corporals Barker, MacDougall, Mitchell, and Phillips.

Retreat:

On many occasions throughout the year, Camp Weymouth orchestra, including Privates Andrews, Galligan, Lang, Loud, MacLeod and Pratt, furnished appropriate music.

Evening Chow:
Regular rations were served.

Evening Recreation:
Officers and privates enjoyed various programs at the U. S. O. and Buddy Clubs:
"The Musical Review", starring Privates Spinella, Langford, Parker, and Buchan; a farewell dance (Senior Prom) for P. F. C's (Privates First class); the play "What a Life" (Senior Play).

Taps:
The band, including Privates Andrews, Bloom, Dodge, Loud, McLean, and Mitchell, played taps. Afterwards Camp Weymouth sent its companies off for furloughs and summer maneuvers.

Camp Weymouth sent officers and privates on furloughs and to special training centres.

JUNIOR YEAR

Reveille:
Camp Weymouth's Band heralded the opening of the football season.

Calisthenics:
Under Corporal Lang, the 1942 football platoon completed an undefeated season.

Inspection:
The football season was effectively "cleaned up" with the successful Victory Dance, sponsored by the "M. P.'s."

"To Thee We Sing" (annual musical review) starring Pvts. Langford, Buchan, Wilder, Lindsay, and Call; "The First Lady" (teachers' play); "Ever Since Eve" (Senior Play); and a dance (Senior Prom).

Camp Weymouth was sent on two months maneuvers.

SENIOR YEAR

REVEILLE:

Under Lieutenant Calderwood, Weymouth Band drilled for football maneuvers.

CLEAN TENTS:

The football players all pitched in to clean the benches at Legion Field after the Braintree platoon had come over to have some fun.

MORNING CHOW:

Because of food curtailment the football platoon did not have its annual football banquet.

FORMATION:

During football season, Corporal Walter Lang led the team with twenty-nine straight wins to its credit. The record was broken this year, however, by a loss of one point to Quincy.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS:

To lead Camp Weymouth in organized cheer drills was an assignment for Privates Donald Anderson, Mabel Blenis, and Frances Hawes.

The band was led by Drum Majorettes Edith Dorn—Leader, Edith Pratt and Elsie Regan—Assistants.

PARADE:

Corporal Ambler brought the basketball platoon through the season with not a too good record, but with a win over Rockland, Weymouth being the only team to beat them this year. The Engineering Division (Trade School) had Corporal Belcastro at the head of its team this year.

Corporal McKinney lead the baseball platoon in an uneventful season.

Main Classes:

Aviation classes were introduced at Camp Weymouth by government order. Civilian welding was also added.

Prophecy

Senior Class Prophecy

Class of 1943

For these precise,
Very concise,
Wonderfully wise, prophecies clear,
We did succeed
In learning to read
The future for all, for many a year.

Taking a glance,
While in a trance,
We saw it all, as in a dream;
Here was the clue,
Just what to do,
The magical key, the mystical scheme.

Quite so complex,
It did perplex
Even our own masterful brains;
Numerous means
And mental machines
We did perceive, the goal to attain.

To make a mistake
No chance did we take,
Watching for all errors so small;
Spending our days
In vigilant gaze
Over our weird, mysterious ball.

Numbers galore,
Stars by the score,
We counted the signs of various dates,
In order to find
What was behind
All our friends' dubious fates.

We understand
Lines on the hand;
They tell us much of what is in store;
Bumps on the head,
Carefully read,
Helped us to deduce a little bit more.

Thoroughly mix
All of these tricks,
Twist them around until they agree;
Then, if you look
At the rest of this book,
You will soon see, what is to be.

ELIZABETH ABBRUZZESE
Betty has completed her training and is a nurse at the Quincy Hospital, where she rates tops with her patients.

FREDERICK ABRAHAMSEN
Fred is that well-known navigator in Uncle Sam's Navy. He navigates as well on land as he does on the sea.

MARIE ABRUZESE
"Mickey" has now settled down to married life with an ex-Service man.

ALBERT AHLSTEDT
"Tweedy" takes care of his pedigreed cows at the ever-famous Ahlstedt Farm. He has a prosperous milk route.

Reflector

THE STAFF of the Reflector has concluded its duties for the school year of 1942-1943. During this time, four issues, the Thanksgiving, Christmas, April issues and the Year Book, were printed in the Weymouth Vocational School. We have endeavored to have the publications reflect the best thoughts and ideas of all the pupils, by choosing the highest grade materials offered from all classes. We hope that our efforts have provided the students with an interesting publication.

We, of the Reflector wish to thank our faculty advisers, Mr. Prescott B. Brown, Miss Helen Chase, and Mr. James F. Steele, for their splendid advice and untiring service. We are grateful to the teachers for their assistance and to the students for their helpful co-operation. We also wish to thank Mr. Harry F. Duncan, printing instructor, for his ever-ready aid.

In departing, we wish to extend to the staff of next year's Reflector our sincere wises for success and the hope that they will find in their work the pleasure and satisfaction that we have found in ours.

Student Council

THE STUDENT COUNCIL is the student government of Weymouth High School. It consists of twenty representatives who have voluntarily worked for the privilege of becoming members. They are nominated and elected by the student body. It is their duty to maintain law and order in the lunch-room and corridors.

On December 4, 1942, the Student Council held a Victory Dance in behalf of the Athletic Fund.

May our Weymouth High School Student Council be more successful with each succeeding year!

The Press Club

THE PRESS CLUB, under the direction of Miss Lyons and Mr. Cleaves, has completed its third successful year. Under the leadership of co-editors, Claire Plourde and Jacqueline Fitzgerald, the club followed the pattern previously set for the first two years. This consisted of the members collecting news concerning the school, student body, faculty, and alumni. A new column, "Attention",was added, and has been successfully conducted by Aileen Andrews. A revolving plan, whereby each member would have the opportunity of conducting each column, was begun and proved to be highly successful.

To all future members of the Press Club we wish all the success in the world.

Book Club

The Book Club, under the direction of Miss Gross, has completed its sixth year. All members have participated in book reviews and round-table book discussions throughout the year. The highlights of the year were the successful campaign to collect books for the Service men, the book review given by Anna Gloster, and the salute to Weymouth by Robert Page given over station WEEI, under the auspices of the Herald Traveler Junior Book Review Program.

The officers of the Club this year were:

President	John McGovern

Senior Play

ON MAY 21, 1943, under the direction of Miss Helen Chase and Miss Anita Petrucci, the members of the Senior Class presented the three act comedy, "Growing Pains".

The play tells of the dilemma of the McIntyres, who see their boy and girl tossed in the cataracts of adolescence and can help little further than give directions for the turbulent course from a distance, advice which egocentric youth always neglects of course.

George and Terry, typical "teens", go through their throes in company with the neighborhood "kids". Many things happen to all of them, but the end is bright and promising.

Trade Basketball

WITH ONLY a handful of boys to choose from at the start of the season, Coach Jalmar Nelson built up a fairly good team. Joe Ryan and John Belcastro were the only veterans left from the previous season. They both starred in every game they played. The team, due to its inexperience, got away to a poor start, but as the season advanced, it got into shape and did well in its final games. The teams played were Hingham, Somerville, Everett, Holbrook, and Randolph. The players were as follows:

V. Costa, Manager *
A. Mac Dougall, Assistant Manager

J. Belcastro *
C. Boyle
B. Del Vecchio
M. Emburg
F. Goodwin
C. Hatchfield
K. Heger

Orchestra

THE ORCHESTRA provided music for the Monday Club play, "The Man who Came to Dinner", both at the High School and the South Weymouth Naval Base, and for the senior play, "Growing Pains".

Under the leadership of Mr. James W. Calderwood, the players have constantly improved their playing, which has met with favorable comment many times.

Band

THE FOOTBALL games would not be complete without the band in their maroon and gold uniforms. The music is under the direction of Mr. James W. Calderwood. The maneuvers are planned and drilled by Mr. John Ghiorse.

Our band has had a very successful year. They appeared at all home games and at Quincy. In the Armistice Day parade at Hingham, the Weymouth Band held the place of honor and dedicated the new Service Roll.

The officers of the band for this year are:

Student Band Master—Alden Loud
Secretary—Marie Haviland

The Drum Majorettes were:

Edith Dorn
Elsie Regan
Edith Pratt

The seniors who are leaving wish the band next year an equally successful season.

Football Team

WEYMOUTH HIGH triumphs again! The boys got off to a slow start, resulting in some deadlock games, but they consequently hammered down opposition, similar to last year's team. Arlington, Quincy Brookline, and Norwood gave some trouble to the boys. Quincy's powerful squad upset the Maroon's clean slate by a one point margin. This was our first loss in twenty-nine games. The Turkey Day opponent, Hingham, battled them to a scoreless tie on a mud-covered gridiron. Robert Page capably managed the team. As in the past, Mr. Harry Arlanson was an efficient coach.

First Row: T. Doyle, J. Crowley, L. Ambler, J. Barker; Second Row: D. Coffey, A. Sheehy, W. Gorman, W. Doyle, Mr. Gannon.

Basketball

THE OIL shortage and dimout regulations made it necessary to play most of the games this year in the afternoon. The squad, lacking size and experience, although failing to win many victories, displayed fine ball handling ability and teamwork. With a larger squad next year, we look forward to Mr. Gannon's producing a quintet of championship calibre.

Baseball

THE CANDIDATES for this year's team were slow to report for practice. However, Coach Arlanson finally mustered up a good-looking group of potential winners. The boys got off to a discouraging start, as they dropped the initial game.

Practice this year was made difficult by the poor condition of Legion Field. Much of the practising had to be done at Lovell's Corner. At the present time, a successful season seems doubtful, but we shall see.

First Row: R. Gifford, R. Lysakowski, Coach G. Stewart, J. Scott, H. Rogers; Second Row: J. Roberts, A. Healy, M. Robertson, S. Robertson, J. Vergobbi, A. Ross; Third Row: J. Butler, W. Turner, J. Ouellet, L. Vergobbi, G. Labidie.

Wrestling

THE MATMEN of 1942-1943 did a good deal of practice and preparation, but did not apply their skill in many matches. Raymond Lysakowski was the outstanding grappler of the group.

In the absence of Mr. Francis Kelley, Mr. George Stewart has taken over the coaching position. His interest and efforts did not go unrewarded, since every boy on the squad always looked prepared on the mat.

Track and Cross Country

THE TRACK SQUAD was tiptop this year. The winter Track Squad was in the best condition. Tom Smith, Alden Loud, John Levaas, Joe Ouellet, and John McGovern were all individual champions at some time or another. In the 16th annual Inter-Scholastic meet, Weymouth took first place. Much credit is due Mr. Oral Page.

The winter team also took a trip to New York to compete in the Nationals. Tom Smith was right there for Weymouth, when he placed in a dash event.

This spring the track squad may even outdo the record of the winter team. In its large group are many new freshman and sophomores. Hingham was completely defeated in the opening meet.

The squad is capably managed by Howard Auld, Class of '43

CROSS COUNTRY

ALTHOUGH the Cross Country team had a slow start, because only one letterman and a single experienced runner returned from last year, it improved steadily under the guidance of Coach Page. The harriers defeated Quincy at the end of the season, and cut eight points off a previous score in a return meet with Braintree. The team consisted of Captain John Levaas, Tom Twomey, Fred Roberts, Bob Chalmers, Allen Dewey and Aldrich Cook, manager. Chalmers was elected to captain the 1943 squad, but he enlisted in the Navy at the close of the winter track season.

The scores of the meets are:

Rockland	23	Weymouth	35
Milton	17	Weymouth	44
Braintree	20	Weymouth	40
Weymouth	23	Quincy	32
Braintree	22	Weymouth	34
Weymouth	21	Quincy	35

Senior Boys' Sports

WEYMOUTH HIGH has made gymnasium compulsory for junior and senior boys, and also all other boys over eighteen years of age. In January, when the toughening-up course began, various exercises were given, such as the elephant walk, the duck walk, calisthenics, and volleyball. These exercises proved to be a good preparation for the indoor obstacle course, which was not difficult, even when done in earnest. It proved to be, for the most part, a series of dashes, along with a little ladder and rope climbing.

However, as spring came along, a real obstacle course was constructed. This course, which is about seventy-five yards long, consists of a seven-foot wall, an imaginary ditch to be travelled by means of horizontal bars, a four foot horizontal bar to vault over, a series of horizontal bars to climb up, sometimes called the "monkey climb". Also a ditch must be crossed by means of the running broad jump. There are balance beams to run across, and finally a sprint to the finish.

This gym program will, without doubt, be of noticeable benefit to those seniors entering the combat branches of the services. The rigid conditioning program which the various corps require should be of great benefit to the boys from Weymouth High.

Class Will...

THE TIME IS 1963. The class of '43 is having its reunion at the "Skyways", an exclusive club on the air route just outside the city. Old acquaintances are being renewed and many are talking of the "good old days". The meeting is soon called to order, and the business at hand is set forth. Finally the will, which has been in the treasurer's safe for twenty years, is brought out. It is handed to the president, and he begins:

"When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for us of the honorable Class of 1943 to leave Weymouth High School, to dissolve the bonds which have joined us so closely to our teachers, and to assume among the powers of the earth the high positions and honor worthy of us, a decent respect to the curiosity of the lower classmen requires that we declare the unique gifts we leave them:

To 211 we leave a muffler for the bell and a larger wastebasket for all chewing gum collected.

To 212 we bequeath a rubber ceiling, to catch all liquids escaping from the chemistry lab.

To 214-A we will a body guard for Miss Silverman as protection against her home-room and class students.

To 214-B we bequeath the sportsmanship of Mr. Martin, and to him we leave a world map to show his next year's classes how the world used to look.

To rooms 214-A and 214-B we will a few sharp axes to make "one big happy family."

To 216 we leave a turnstile in each door operated from the desk to keep those active seniors in, also a B. E. R. (Boston Elevated Railroad) cap for Mr. Cleaves.

To 217 we bequeath a police badge for Miss Canning, thereby giving her the authority to drag any of her students out of 216 back to her home room.

To 216 and 217 we will a bolt for the swinging door to confine chalk fights to one room at a time.

To 218 we leave a stage on which Miss Chase can reproduce her beloved Shakespearean plays.

To 301 we bequeath a reflector attached to the top of the coat room door so that Miss Norris will be able to take her attendance without any trouble.

To 112 we leave a supply of chalk, erasers, pencil sharpeners, and an extension that will accommodate all future mathematicians.

To the Chemistry Lab. we bequeath a nickel pin-ball machine so that the students may be entertained while waiting for an experiment to be completed.

To Mr. Lyons we leave a bus with which he may pick up those who are "wandering from the beaten path."

To Mr. Whittle we leave a bottle of aspirin to help in making out next year's program.

To the juniors we bequeath our superior intellect.

To the sophomores we bequeath our athletic prowess and proficiency in the commando course.

To the freshmen, our unbounded sympathy.

To the school we leave a detector stationed on the roof to announce the type, speed, and direction of all passing aircraft.

TRADE SCHOOL

To Mr. Bryan, Mr. Bacon, and the Auto Repair Shop, we leave a new Pyrene fire extinguisher (women welders).

To Mr. Sherwood we bequeath an automatic detector to help him find the "borrowed tools."

To the cabinet shop we will a plastic surgeon to replace missing fingers.

To Mr. Whipple we leave a lie detector to sort out poor excuses for A. W. O. L.

To the sheet-metal teachers and pupils we will a pair of tin stretchers and a few buckets of steam.

To Mr. Duncan and the Printing Department we bequeath a pair of tweezers to pick out type lice from our Reflector.

To Mr. Whittemore and Room 3 we leave an X-ray machine for the purpose of detecting early lunch-eaters hiding behind desk covers.

Thus, we, the Class of 1943, appealing to the honor and faithfulness of the incoming seniors, do solemnly publish and declare that this is our last will and testament and that, as free and independent seniors, they have full power to assume our duties of bewildering freshman, baffling teachers, and building dreams.

As the last line is read, there is amazement as to how the will was carried out in every respect. The meeting is then closed and the will is again laid away for posterity.

PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY WITH WAR DAMAGE INSURANCE

On July 1, 1943, one year of Government War Damage insurance has been in force.

We are informed that no part of the collected premiums have been in any manner applied to the payment of claims previous to July 1, 1942, and that no course leading to the invasion of the premium fund for such purposes is contemplated.

Five million policies have been issued with premiums totaling $130,000,000, but $130,000,000, against a risk of $120,000,000,000, would represent an inadequate reserve fund.

Claims totaling more than $60,000,000 have already been filed with the War Damage Corporation previous to July 1, 1942 and more substantial claims will be made in the Philippines as soon as the Japs are out.

About $22,000,000,000 of insurance is written on property in Greater New York alone, so that one air raid there, could very easily wipe out the entire premium income for one year.

The war is not ended; the future is uncertain; the cost is small; and you cannot afford to take the chance yourself.
